Dilworth Dotage.

DILWORTH, Nov. 27.

EDITOR GAZETTE: "Facts are chiefs that winna ding and dinna be disputed." Robert Burns, the poet, said so and probably he knew for he had several hard facts to contend with in his short but eventful yet withal merry life. It is a fact that Murphy, Foster & Co. killed a large loafer wolf in this immediate vicinity last week but Stonewall has taken the Shine (r) out of Dilworth in recording the fight, so for the nonce our side of the story will be kept "sub thumb-be." If that is not good Latin let Stonewall beat it as the Institute here is not yet flourishing although the school master is abroad.

Mrs. Hammond, whose husband died very suddenly about a year ago, has with her charming family gone to Austin to reside.

Dancing and merry parties are taking place around here almost every evening so that notwithstanding the very changeable weather there are many enjoyable gatherings among both white folks and colored.

One fact, or rather what ought to be a fact, is that the GAZETTE should have many more subscribers in this district. Your correspondent's eye is upon a few of the most-likely-to-be and it is quite possible that within a few days the mail bag may be a little heavier than for some time past.

Dr. Minton is preparing his home here previous to his final settlement with us. He has bought the store for some time occupied by Uncle Ben Geary and the lumber is laid down for a culinary and dormitory addition to the premises.
Probably next week will see the doctor's shingle hung to the breeze.
Uncle Ben is going to establish his grocery store at the cross-roads between here and Gonzales with a view to share the trade with the "village" of Gonzales and the "city" of Dilworth. Uncle Ben, success to you and don't forget to subscribe to the GAZETTE.

A very serious fire occurred about three miles from town on Thursday between noon and 1 p. m. Mr. Gertsche, a renter of Mr.
H. K. Jones', had his corn crib, shacks of fodder and 250 bushels of corn burnt. How the fire originated is a mystery. A strong dry norther was blowing and it seems the pasture grass caught fire first by some means, at present unknown and before it could be put out the fodder and corn crib caught and were destroyed. Mr. Jones had just built a new dwelling house and crib and Mr. Gertsche had just moved his effects and corn from Fitzgerald's land to the new premises. Fortunately the dwelling house was saved but it was a narrow escape and the loss of so much to any poor farmer is a very heavy one. It is rumored there is a movement on foot by his neighbors and friends to help Mr. Gertsche in his dire necessity.

Frank says the pecan eater in last week's GAZETTE is not him.
There might be a doubt about it but in the somnal movements the boy keeps repeating: "This is the last one," just the same as Frank does when he is asked to divide.

Mrs. Watts of Victoria, who has been on a visit to her brother, Mr.
John Bell at Stonewall, took the train for Gonzales to visit other relatives.

Mrs. Bartsch, senior, from Shiner has been visiting her sons here the last week.

Mrs. Mary Foster at Mrs. Braches' had her little daughter, who is in school at Luling, on a visit for a day or two. She left again on Saturday to resume her studies.

The wife of Mr. Frank Bartsch presented him on Monday morning a fine daughter. Mother and child are doing well.

Mrs. Anna Jones Kennard has returned from Rockport and Corpus Christi and the salt sea breezes and inhalation of old ocean's ozone seem to have given her more health and sprightliness. Mr. J. B. Kennard did not return with her but came back on Sunday.

DILWORTH,
